“Discover sustainable tourism options for responsible travel”.

There are several sustainable tourism options, including ecotourism and community-based tourism. Ecotourism focuses on nature conservation and environmental education through activities such as hiking and wildlife observation. Community-based tourism, on the other hand, seeks to involve local communities in the tourism industry and generate economic benefits for them through interaction with local culture and cuisine and participation in activities such as agriculture and handicrafts. Both options allow tourists to connect responsibly and consciously with nature and local cultures.
